CABINET ASSEMBLED

Rome, Aug. 21.

An emergency meeting of the Ministers of the British Government, presided over by the Prime Minister, Mr. Stanley Baldwin, was held at 5 p.m. to- in Shanghai, claimed he was a day. Sir Samuel Hoare, the Foreign Minister, Mr. Anthony Eden, the Minister for League Affairs, Mr. Malcolm MacDonald, Colonial Secretary, Mr. Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, and Sir John Simon, Home Secretary, were present.

To-morrow's Cabinet meeting is called for 10 o'clock, the unusual hour indicating a prolonged discussion.

It is believed that the full details of British policy by the fact that he speaks English. will not be elaborated to-morrow, but a decision on German. French and Russian general principles is expected.

The Cabinet is believed to be divided on the issue of sanctions against Italy, those favouring this step believing they can be imposed without involving the gravest of consequences, and the others holding that Britain's effort should be confined to restricting the conflict to Africa.

is understood that an emergency meeting of the Ministers comprising the Foreign Affairs Committee, after hearing Mr. Eden's report to-day on the Paris tri-power conversations and Sir Samuel Honre's views thereon, will decide what policy it should recommend to the Cabinet tomorrow.

Sir Samuel Hoare and Mr. Eden also conferred to-day with Mr. Winston Churchill and the Labour Opposition leader, Mr. George Lansbury.

POLICY RECOMMENDED

It is understood that as a result of the meeting to-day of the Foreign Affairs Committee of the Cabinet, that a policy has been decided upon for recommendation to the full Cabinet meeting tomorrow. The recommendation will be that Britain should stand firmly by her obligations under the agent of the state of the League of Nations Covenant.

> Something went wrong with the timing, a bullet smashed the propeller blade; Immelmann perished by his own gunfire.

This is the surprising statement made in the life story, published in London last week, of this heroic young German, whose courage was so admired by enemy British pilots that one of them risked his life to drop on the airdrome from which Immelmann operated a wreath bearing the words: "In honour of a gallant and chivalrous opponent."

"No Information"

The book, "Max Immelmann, the Eagle of Lille," is by his brother, Franz Immelmann, and is translated into English by Claud W. Sykes.

It will create controversy among, war historians. At the time credit for bringing down our greatest enemy in the air given to Lieutenant McCubbin. Newspapers published his photograph and accounts of the air combat.

The Berliner Tageblatt also published an account of the air duel, in which it was stated that Immelmann was shot down by three British machines.

A month after the episode a question was asked in the House Commons on the subject. People were clamouring for official recognition of our own air The answer was the familiar "No information is available."

Here, in brief, is Franz Immelmann's account of his brother's end:—

Immelmann in his Fokker up proaches a group of five English machines in June 1916. He fires a white signal light to warn the German "archies" to cease fire. He climbs above the enemy and dives on to one of the Englishmen. He brings him down. He turns his attention to another Englishman.

Then his Fokker suddenly rears up, comes down over the left wing, attains a level position again and flies shead with strange lashing movements of its tail. Then the rear part of the fuselage departs from the forepart. The cockpit. hurtles into the depths with the pilot falling like a stone.

Brother's Pride

This description might well apply to a machine shot down in the air.

The author, however, makes deductions from the official examination of the debris, and concludes that Immelmann had shot off his own propeller.

R.A.F. Flies On Fuel From Mines

NEW REVIVAL IN BLACK DIAMOND INDUSTRY?

THE output of petrol from British coal and similar materials rose last year to 52,000,000 gallons.

In the previous year it was 45,-000,000 gallons. In 1931 it was 38,000,000.

Nine R.A.F. stations are now using a fuel of which petrol from British coal is a large ingredient.

The most recent previous announcement by the Government was that seven squadrons were using it.

In 1933 one home defence squadron flew solely on motor spirit produced from British coal, and the results were so satisfactory that a contract was placed to supply seven squad-During the same period about 2,000 tons of oil produced from coal were supplied to the Navy. Trials of this fuel have been carried out both at the Admiralty Experimental Station and on service affoat.

"Bird of Paradise" Filmed "Bird of Paradise", now at the Star and Louise Henry. Theatre, is perhaps one of the best known plays ever produced. The pathetic romance of Luana, a child of nature, who falls hopelessly in love with a white man, and as hopelessly sacrifices her love, required a setting in sympathy with the sublime character of her heroism. That there could be no other setting than Hawaii was leasily apparent to David O. Selznick, bodies for a large part of the time all RKO production. Thus the production wheels were set motion. THE PACT AND THE

The suggestion that the

NEED FOR IMPROVEMENT

The need for improving the systems of electrified suburban railways to the north and east of London has long been urgently felt. The lack of adequate transport in these regions had become a serious grievance, and the railway authorities had only been deterred from undertaking new construction on their own credit by the enormous capital outlay it would involve. The experiment will be of the greatest importance. The lessons learned from it wil be applicable to other undertakings. It is not likely to be the last. Already several comparable schemes are being pressed upon the Government's attention.

ASKING FOR TROUBLE Lord Beaverbrook is very angry because Mr. Malcolm MacDonald has "rejected the policy of Customs Union with the Crown Colonies." He advocates, he explains, the the Colonies—beneficent traders and workers who will exchange their goods under that system freely within the largest and best ordered market in the world. There the beneficence stops, observes the News Chronicle. Even Lord Beaverbrook does not claim that his system will be beneficent to the great nations outside it borders. Yet how can the demands of their evergrowing populations be ignored? There are two ways with European Powers in an only in which these demands can be met. One is by granting the outside world a reasonable measure of free trade with our Colonies, treated for this purpose as "mandated" territories. One is by giving the excluded nations Colonies of their own. That means in practice surrendering to them territory at present in one form or another. under British administration. GENERAL DISCUSSIONS

London, Aug. 21. The Prime Minister, Mr. Stanley Baldwin, reached London this afternoon from Aix-les-Bains at the same time as the Chancelfor of the Exchequer, Mr. Neville Chamberlain, who has also returned from holiday abroad.

Soon after the Prime Minister's arrival in Downing Street the Foreign Secretary, Sir Samuel Hoare, the Minister for League Affairs, Mr. Eden, and other leading Ministers, were in consultation with him preparatory to the meeting of the Cabinet called for ten o'clock to-morrow morning to hear a report on the breakdown of the three-power talks in Paris on the Italo-Abyssinian dispute. Opposition leaders have been officially acquainted with the general situation and the Ministers have also had talks with a number of "Elder statesmen" and Empire representatives.

Mr. George Lansbury saw Sir Samuel Honre and Mr. Eden at the Foreign Office this morning calculations based on the old idea and Sir Herbert Samuel had an interview there last night.

WIMBLEDON CHAMPION WINS EASILY

ENGLISHMAN IN CASUAL MOOD IN DAVIS CUP COMPETITION

NERVOUS OPPONENT OFFERS LITTLE OPPOSITION AT WIMBLEDON

(By "Veritas").

F. J. Perry (Great Britain) beat D. Budge (United States) 6-0, 6-8, 6-3, 6-4.

The Centre Court, Wimbledon, July 27. After Austin's scintillating match with Allison, the game between Perry and Budge was, comparatively speaking, like soda water after champagne. Here we saw Perry in his most casual mood and Budge, obviously rendered nervous by the occasion, very much below the form which earned him inclusion in the team at the expense of Sydney Wood.

The tennis brightened, in the second and fourth sets, but it seemed that Austin and Allison had set a standard far beyond the means of their colleagues, and even the crowd found it hard to show any enthusiasm. Perry careered through the first set to love in eleven minutes and if he had been knocking up he could not have obtained his points with less resistance. Budge, his strokes working like a typewriter with its slugs! all out of alignment, spent those; eleven minutes hitting two yards bewond the baseline or sending the ball into the bottom of the net.

"THIS IS TOO EASY"

During this period Perry played like a world's champion but at the end of the set one could almost hear him; say "This is too easy," for in the following three sets (and I am still puzzled to know why he lost the second) he was dilatory and fretful, tors watched the International two very unhappy features of a player whose normal game makes him a

HOMERS WITH FULL BASES

New York, Aug. 21. A baseball feat performed by Babe Ruth and which has not been beaten for many years, was surpassed by Lou Gehrig, the New York Vankees batsman, and former team-mate of the King of the Swat, when he scored a home run with all bases full against St. Louis Browns to-day.

This was the seventeenth occasion on which Gehrly has scored a home run with all bases full and he shattered Babe Ruth's lifetime record of sixteen home runs with all bases full.

The Yankees ensily won their duel with the Browns, whom they beat by fourteen runs to two. Lary scored a home run for the St. Louis outfit.

However, in the second match of a double hender, the Browns trounced the Yankees, even though Lou Gehrig again scored a home run. Several double headers were played off to-day. The Detroit Tigers took both their games from the Boston Red Sox while the Athletics and the Indians shared their two matches.

The Giants, in the National Lengue, CRICKETERS beat Cincinnati Reds by three; runs to nothing, Schumacher blanking out the Cincinnati club. In a double header Chicago Cubs and Philadelphia Phillies each won one match.

South African Cricketers Win The Rubber

(By R. Abbit)

LIFELESS DONALD BUDGE

The fifth Test Match has come and BROTHERS last achieved their ambition, or rather they have achieved their two ambitions in one summer. They have beaten the full strength of England in England. It was a big thing this. They have beaten England often enough in South Africa, but then the English team never represented the full strength of the Mother Country.
Moreover, there was always the slight advantage they held from the different nature of the wickets on which the visiting English elevens had to play. And they also went on to their second ambition and won the rubber whilst playing in England. History has been made.

CAUSE OF SUCCESS

And how has their, success been brought about? To my mind they have had a very far seeing Board of Ernest Whitcombe (Meyrick Control in South Africa. CUP MATCH AT WIMBLEDON can, after he had regained his confidence, sought the net he usually had to wait until he could come up on a full-bloaded drive.

As yet I have not seen Perry play when he has impressed one as being the complete player. He seems the adroit placing of his sliced back- ciation held a meeting yesterday evenhand and undoubted ability in the ing for the purpose of rearranging forecourt. But he does not mix his postponed League fixtures, fixing the length as one would expect and one dates for the finals of the Open Rink might say he never employs a drop and Pairs competitions, the drawing watch because it is executed with such case of action, but there is a auggestion of carelessness about it. He made so many errors on this hand against Budge that it remained his least impressive stroke.

It was that searing forehand drive followed by energetic net raids which renped Perry the majority of his points. And another important factor was his abundant confidence. At no stage was it really threatened. Bilt throughout the match Perry played rather like a coach a bit peeved because the pupil had shown that with some things he didn't require any

On the other hand there were points about this match which Budge could profitably inculcate and turn to his own advantage. This was the match from the student's viewpoint. But to the erowd at large the only thing that mattered was Great Britain had become two up, with three to play, and the Davis Cup as good as retained.

"AND SO TO BED!"

SOUTH AFRICANS WIN THE RUBBER

ly shaken. Now as regards (a) the wicket was perfect so far as we know and the weather fine, as regards (b) there is no marked superiority of the English side; and as regards (c) the same argument would apply if we shot them out in their first innings for a trifle after we had batted first. But take now the case for England's batting first. Supposing we made first use of what was a good wicket. Any change for the worse in the weather must operate against the side batting second. As it happened, there was not one-but there might have been. As far as can be made out England took just about a day's cricket to run up five hundred and thirty-four runs. Now had we done that on Saturday there would have been a much better chance of an innings defeat for South Africa. And it was pretty evident that, barring the wicket cracking up, the only likelihood of a decision in three days-at the Ovall-was an innings victory. COMPARISON

I do not think it can be denied that speaking generally England could put rather a better batting side into the field. We did, in fact, defeat the South Africans on the first innings on each of the four drawn matches. But our bowling was never good enough to force home a win. It really was a question of which team should make a slip. England done it, as a young friend of mine put it. And once one down, in three day matches our bowling lacked that extra bit of devil that wins games. The South Africans were a most reliable side and they thoroughly deserved to win the rubber. THE RETURN OF AMES It was pleasant to see Ames at last run into form with the bat. He is far too young and far too useful to pass out of Test Cricket for years. There have been several useful bats of the younger generation, but what we have not discovered is a new bowler. It may be Read will come on. Unfortunately so many fast bowlers, have a bright patch and then flicker out as Farnes seems to have done. Verity seems to have shot his bolt save when the wicket really suits him. Bowes is our hope. But there is precious little else about in the Test bowling line. The sad part is that we have so many rabbit-slaughterers in county cricket like Mitchell and Sims, who cannot reproduce their form in a big game.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

In yesterday's article, the rule of eleven was explained. Following are several examples showing how to correctly apply this rule. every case, South is the declarer at no trump, North the dummy, West is the opening leader, and the card led is in parenthesis. East is the partner of the leader.

Example No. 1 Winning low-then, unblocking

N-Dummy

E-Partner W---Iænder K-9-8-(4)-3 A-J-7-5 S-Declarer

West opens the four spot, his HAMBURG fourth best. Applying the rule of BANKOW eleven, four from eleven leaves. HARBIN seven. There are three in the dummy, and as East, the partner of the original leader, holds four, Therefore, if the declarer plays the six from dummy, his seven spot will hold the trick. Likewise, if the declarer plays the ten, h will win the trick with the jack, if the declarer plays the queen, he will win with the ace.

Supposing the declarer played the six, the seven now holds the trick. East should return the ace, and then the jack, unblocking the suit so that his partner can make the fifth card of that suit. If East were to return the five spot, West would be forced to win with the king; then when West returned the suit East would have it blocked with the ace-jack.

(SPECIAL TO "TELEGRAPH")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance 1894. Received, Aug. 22, 11 a.m. London, August 21.

The Daily Mail's correspondent in Addis Ababa writes that Emperor Selassie has ordered general mobilisation, following a conference of tribal chieftains, although no official announcement has been made.

If the report is true it indicates that the Emperor regards the failure of the Paris conference as meaning that war with Italy is inevitable.

Meanwhile, in London, the Foreign Affairs Committee of the Cabinet was meeting at Downing Street and after an hour and fifty-five minutes of conversation the leaders departed grim-faced.

It is learned that Great Britain is endeavouring to avert not only an Italo-Ethiopian war, but a war in to Africa. Europe, which daily becomes a great threat.

INDICATES FAITH IN FUTURE

EXTENSIVE BUILDING PROCEEDING

Taking an optimistic view of the future, the Hongkong and Kowloon Wharf and Godown Co., Ltd., has embarked on a scheme of expansion in order to cater to the growing needs of the port, and at the same time is instituting new arrangements for the convenience and comfort of people awaiting the arrival of ships.

A big shelter in the middle of the pier will enable the more convenient and expeditious landing of passengers' baggage, while the annoyance caused by mooring ropes across the wharf will be eliminated.

Special arrangements are also to be made for people arriving or departing by launch, while the wharf is to be flood-lighted from towers on the wharf and from the Praya.

Something went wrong with the timing, a bullet smashed the propeller blade; Immelmann perished by his own gunfire.

This is the surprising statement made in the life story, published in London last week, of this heroic young German, whose courage was so admired by enemy British pilots that | one of them risked his life to drop on the nirdrome from which Immelmann operated a wreath bearing the words: "In honour of a gallant and chivalrous opponent."

"No Information" The book, "Max Immelmann, the Eagle of Lille," is by his brother, Franz Immelmann, and is translated into English by Claud W. Sykes. It will create controversy among war historians. At the time credit for bringing down our greatest enemy in the air given to Lieutenant McCubbin. Newspapers published his photograph and accounts of the air combat.

The Berliner Tageblatt also published an account of the air duel, in which it was stated that Immelmann was shot down by three British machines.

A month after the episode a question was asked in the House of Commons on the subject. People were clamouring for official recognition of our own air hero. The answer was the familiar "No information is available."

Here, in brief, is Franz Immelmann's account of his brother's end:--

Immelmann in his Fokker approaches a group of five English machines in June 1916. He fires a white signal light to warn the German "archies" to cease fire. He climbs above the enemy and dives on to one of the Englishmen. He brings him down. He turns his attention to another Englishman.

Then his Fokker suddenly rears up, comes down over the left wing. attains a level position again and flies shead with strange lashing movements of its tail. Then the rear part of the fuselage departs from the forepart. The cockpit hurtles into the depths with the pilot falling like a stone. Brother's Pride This description might well apply to a machine shot down in the air. The author, however, makes deductions from the official examination of the debris, and i concludes that Immelmann had shot off his own propeller. "He was unconquered to the calculations based on the old idea of the Balance of Power. Drop the idea that the League exists to prevent war, made by whomsoever against whomsoever, and you abandon the whole basis of the Covenant. As a preventive of war, the League ceases to exist. The attempt to keep it in being as a decent cover for the balance of power policy of this or that

LEAGUE MUST DO

State is doomed to failure. The Covenant exists, or it does not exist. Either its obligations are binding or they are the veriest scrap of paper. And I would point this out to some Continental Governments-this country has no obligations at all that are not either of the Covenant or indissolubly linked with the Covenant.

Break the Covenant in the case of Abyssinia and the Covenant is dead. The law is dead. The League may continue, wretchedly, to exist as a "machinery for Incilitating and regularising the means of international co-operation"-as a sort of diplomatic Stock Exchange--but it vanishes as an upholder of the law and as a means of ensuring-

This is the issue that the next few weeks are going definitely to decide one way or another.

You cannot have it both ways. You cannot have a League which will protect Austria but will not protect Abyssinia. You cannot have a League which will restrain Germany but will not restrain Italy. You can have a League, or no Lengue. You cannot have half a League. You can have the law, or you can have anarchy. There is no halfway house.

THE PACT AND THE CRISIS

The suggestion that the United States should intervene in the Italo-Abyssinian crisis, as a signatory of the Kellogg Pact, brings to the fore the question of the value or otherwise of that agreement, devised for the specific purpose of preserving world peace. The United States, like all other signatories, has the right to draw the attention of the subscribing nations to the dangers of a conflict, but the Pact carries with it no definite obligation of concerted action. The most that can be hoped for, apparently, is that pressure may be brought to bear on Italy to desist from the use of force against Abyssinia. The moral The lessons learned from it will effect of any representations under the Pact is not to be underestimated, but the practical utility thereof remains open to question. Actually, all that the Powers adhering to the Kellogg Pact did was to renounce war as an instrument of national policy; the Pact carried with it: no machinery for meeting a crisis when it arose. It is true that attempts have been made to read into the Pact an obligation of united action by the signatories against any nation adjudged to have infringed the undertaking, but there does not appear to be any real justification for such a view. When the Pact was concluded, its chief value was considered to be the alignment of the United States with European Powers in an effort to put an end to war once and for all. The League of Nations, it was thought, was not enough, of itself, to prevent war, with the United States outside membership. America's association, therefore, with the other major Powers, in a united declaration outlawing wars considered to strengthen the peace structure, inasmuch as any peace system with the United States in would be far more effective than any system with the United States out. From the start, however, there were doubts in some quarters as to the efficacy of the Pact in fore, chief hopes of the utility times of emergency. But it was of the Pact were that it would felt, at the same time, that any exercise a restraining effect on of the contracting nations which | bellicose nations and give the

The need for improving the sys-

The lack of adequate transport in these regions had become a serious grievance, and the railway authorities had only been deterred from undertaking new construction on their own credit by the enormous But the Government guarantee will give cheap capital. The money invested will earn its dividends. Work which will give employment to thousands of persons including those in the distressed areas, will be provided; and London will be rendered permanently better off. Even Lord Beaverbrook does not claim that his system will be beneficent to the great nations outside its borders. Yet how can the demands of their evergrowing populations be ignored? There are two ways only in which these demands can be met. One is by granting the outside world a reasonable measure of free trade with our Colonies, treated for this purpose as "mandated" territories. One is by giving the excluded nations Colonies of their own. That means in practice surrendering to them territory at present in one form or another under British administration. I we refuse to do either of these things the inevitable result will be war. Denied the right to live either by trade or by colonisation the foreigner will be driven to attempt to secure it by force. Sir, As gathered from the newspapers and magazines, the world's situation, both economically and politically seems to be ever more entangled day by day,

The uncertainty of the day, of to-morrow, is creating such an anxiety in practically all vocations that it would be very thoughtless not to exercise any precaution with a view to preventing more misery and disgrace falling upon this poor humanity.

Appeals for help and funds have so frequently been made by the various local charitable institutions that it would be inconceivable to think that we are not at the foot of so-called "hard-

If an equal response to appeals could be heard from time to time in about the same way as that made during the King's Silver Jubilee, no sooner will the local charitable institutions expand their humanitarian work than those, depending on them, will receive -the kind-of-help theyshould get.

Will there be any difficulty to place a sort of a Charity Box in each and every office or firm under the supervision of a responsible person so that every employee may contribute his share, no matter if it is only ten cents a month, and to appoint a reliable Committee to look after the collections and the distribution of the amount? NAVAL PARLEY IN OCTOBER?

Tokyo, Aug. 22. It is learned that Britain recently sounded Japan on the question of a resumption of multilateral naval talks in London in October.

The Cabinet is reported to have decided to instruct the Japanese Embassy to remind Britain of the Japanese demand for parity, with a common upper limit for tonnage, and to stress the point that, failing prior acceptance, Japan will decline to resume the talks.-Reuter.

WIMBLEDON CHAMPION WINS EASILY

ENGLISHMAN IN CASUAL MOOD IN DAVIS CUP COMPETITION

NERVOUS OPPONENT OFFERS LITTLE OPPOSITION AT WIMBLEDON

(By "Veritas").

·F. J. Perry (Great Britain) beat D. Budge (United States) 6-0, 6-8 6-3, 6-4.

The Centre Court, Wimbledon, July 27.

After Austin's scintillating match with Allison, the game between Perry and Budge was, comparatively speaking, like soda water after champagne. Here we saw Perry in his most casual mood and Budge, obviously rendered nervous by the occasion, very much below the form which earned him inclusion in the team at the expense of Sydney Wood

The tennia brightened in the second and fourth sets, but it seemed that ·Austin and Allison had set a standard far beyond the means of their colleagues, and even the crowd found it hard to show any enthusiasm.

Perry careered through the first set to love in eleven minutes and if he had been knocking up he could not have obtained his points with less resistance. Budge, his strokes working like a typewriter with its slugs. all out of alignment, spent those eleven minutes hitting two yards beyoud the baseline or sending the ball into the bottom of the net.

"THIS IS TOO EASY"

During this period Perry played like a world's champion but at the end of the set one could almost hear him say "This is too easy," for in the following three sets (and I am still puzzled to know why he lost the second) he was dilatory and fretful, two very unhappy features of a player whose normal game makes him world-beater.

Baseball Record By Lou Gehrig

SURPASSES FEAT OF BABE RUTH

HOMERS WITH FULL BASES

New York, Aug. 21.

A baseball feat performed by Babe Ruth and which has not been beaten for many years, was surpassed by Lou Gehrig, the New York Yankees batsman, and former team-mate of the King of the Swat, when he scored a home run with all bases full against St. Louis Browns to-day.

This was the seventeenth occasion on which Gehrig has scored a home run with all bases full and he shattered Babe Ruth's lifetime record of sixteen home runs with all bases full.

The Yankees easily won their duel with the Browns, whom they beat by fourteen runs to two. Lary scored a home run for the St. Louis outfit.

However, in the second match of a double hender, the Browns trounced the Yankees, even though Lou Gehrig again scored a home run. Several double headers were played off to-day. The Detroit Tigera took both their games from the Boston Red Sox while the Athletica and the Indians shared their two matches. South African Cricketers Win The Rubber

The fifth Test Match has come and gone. The South Africans have at last achieved their ambition, or rather they have achieved their two ambitions in one summer. They have beaten the full strength of England in England. It was a big thing this. They have beaten England often enough in South Africa, but then the English team never represented this English team never represented the full strength of the Mother Country. Moreover, there was always the slight UNFORTUNATE END advantage they held from the different nature of the wickets on which the visiting English elevens had to play. And they also went on to their second ambition and won the rubber whilst playing in England. History has been made.

CAUSE OF SUCCESS

And how has their success been l brought about? To my mind they have had a very far seeing Board of Control in South Africa. I know that there has been what might be termed 'domestic trouble' in various nor' did they beat England then. But they did in South Africa in 1930/1931, and six of the 1929 side have played against England in the present successful tour. Moreover even more than six of the present tenm-eight I believe, to speak somewhat at random-were members of the team which toured Australia in 1931/1932. True, they got licked badly. But they were most of them getting their big match experience in their early twenties, which seldom happens at home. Thus the present team, though it averages under 27 years apiece, is mostly made up of veteran cricketers! player who failed. Three strokes ahead at the end of three rounds, he needed a score of 71 in the afternoon to win by a stroka. Out in 36, he seemed safe for the round, but he eventually took 76. The concluding round saw the "breaking down" of several players,

Any hopes there may have been that an Irishman would at last win the title crashed when W. Nolan took 81, for he had been the only native player with a real chance after three rounds. He reached the turn in 38, but on six successive greens from the tenth he took three putts, to return in 43. Syd Easterbrook played stendily for a round of 74, but though he then led with 298, there was little chance of that remaining as the best total.

E. WHITCOMBE'S BAD LUCK

Within fifteen minutes, Ernest Whitcombe had put the title holder out of first place by returning a score of 72 for an aggregate of 292. With any luck, Whitcombe would have been more favourably placed. He failed with a yard putt at the short fourth, took three putts from two yards at the sixth, and missed another short one at the ninth, to be out in 39. ing the journey with a four yards' putt for a two at the tenth, he had a "birdie" three at the eleventh and, apart from pushing out a shot at the twelfth, which cost five, he accured par figures to return in 33. BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

JANET HILL is engaged to ROLF CARLYLE but they do hot have enough money to marry. Janet is secretary for SRUCE HAMILTON, advertising manager of Every Home Magazine, and Rolf works for the Atlas Advertising Co. Janet Insists they must have $500 in a savings account before they can be married.

HOWARD CRESSY, another employee of he magazine, tries to make dates with Janet but she discourages kim. She hurries home from the office one laturday to prepare a surprise birthday dinner for Rolf. On the way she sees a couple entering the fashionable Brewster Hotel Coffee Shop and at first thinks the young man is Rolf. Afterwards she decides she was mistaken. The dinner party is a success. Rolf tells anet there is something he wants to talk to her about but later evades and says it was "nothing." He says he cannot see her next day because he is entertaining an out-of-town friend.

Sunday proves to be a gloomy day. Rolf does not telephone. Janet visits with MOL-LIE LAMBERT, who, lives across the hall. She returns to her room and there confronts a young man she has never seen before.

CHAPTER V

The man found words first. "I--I.-" he stammered, "hope you don't -I mean I didn't mean-that is-I guess I've made a mistake!"

Janet was clutching the pink hathrobe, holding it about her. It was surprise and not fear that held her speechless.

"Who are you?" she demanded. 'And what are you doing in my room ?"

"I guess I've made a mistake," the young man repeated. His face had grown quite red. "You see I didn't know---'

"But what are you doing here?" It was certainly not like Janet to use a tone like that. It wasn't like her at all. The words snapped out sharply. Shock probably was responsible for the stern way she eyed the

It was 4:30 the next afternoon before she heard his voice. Janet had been busy all day. Mondays were always crowded; with Mr. Hamilton in and out of the office, giving his secretary enough work while he was there to more than keep her busy in his absence. This particular Monday had been nerve-vracking. An important piece of copy had been mislaid. There had been three-quarters of an hour of mad scrambling before the pages were discovered. DOORLAY REVUE OPENS

BRIGHT SHOW AT THE KING'S

Well described as a marvel of originality and versatility, Professor William Doorlay's Tropical Express Non-stop Revue, to give it its full title, played to a packed house at the King's Theatre last night and crowded more swift and exhilarating action into two and a half hours than the Colony's pleasure-seeking fans have seen for Tests of 850 Diesel-engined many a long day. JAPANÉSE CASE

A 28-year-old Japanese named Masaharu Nampo, residing at the Tokyo Hotel, also appeared on a charge of entering the Colony without a passport...

Prosecuting, Detective Sergeant Russell stated that defendant arrived yesterday on board the Canton Maru and told the police he had come from Swatow to arrange for a passage on the Empress of Russia, sailing on Friday. He had already bought a ticket for Japan on the Empress of Russin. Defendant said he was informed in Japan before coming to Hongkong that it was not necessary for Japanese to possess a passport for China and Hongkong, so he had not troubled to get one.

A fine of $15 was imposed, and an expulsion order made.
